

Yin Lin Bio

Yin Lin is the co-founder of SheWorx, the global collective for ambitious female entrepreneurs redefining leadership. We are building a stronger ecosystem for female entrepreneurs by creating opportunities for the right mindsets, skillset, and networks to develop. Her entrepreneurial spirit developed out of necessity at an early age when my family emigrated from a rural village in Fuzhou, China to the U.S. and started a restaurant. As one of two English speakers in her family, she was responsible for managing the day-to-day affairs of the business for over 8 years.

Previously she co-founded a design and development agency that helped early stage startups to build out their brand and technology at their most critical juncture. Clients that have leveraged their expertise have gone on to raise over $27M in funding. She was an associate at Techstars, one of the most selective technology accelerators in the world. Yin is a former Teach for America corps member and currently serves on the Teach for America Alumni Board. She also serves on the Innovation Council for FWD.us.

Yin graduated with honors from Tufts University. She has been recognized as "17 Inspiring Women to Watch in 2017" by Inc. and "Top 20 Female Entrepreneurs to Watch in 2017" by CIO. She is a triathlete and a 5-time marathon runner with plans to run a marathon and climb a summit on every continent. Her life motto is to "be uncomfortable".
